

Study Plan

Dear visa officer,

The purpose of this letter is to explain my study plan while studying in Canada. As part of visa application process, I understand that a study plan is potential for my further success.

Objective

To pursue a Master Degree in Human Resources Management in Canada.

Background

It has aroused my intense interest in Human Resources Management after working as an assistant of Human Resources Management for two months in XXXXX. With the economic globalization, this leads to a greater demand in Chinese labor market on professionals that equipped with the advanced knowledge on Human Resources Management and the relevant laws, as well as the excellent communication skills in English. I strongly believe that the Human Resources Management will be one of the most prosperous professions in China in the near future.

After four years of study in XXXXX, I received a Bachelor's Degree of Laws, specializing in XXXXX, on XXXXX. In order to pursue a better career in Human Resources Management, I need to continue my study on Human Resources Management in a graduate program.

My choice of studying in Canada

Compared with the one holding a master degree from a Chinese university, a graduate holding a same degree from a western country is much more competitive in China's labor market. In that case, the experience of study abroad and holding a foreign Master Degree can undoubtedly keep me competitive and help me find a better job in China. In addition, studying abroad may save one year for me to gain the Master Degree: two years abroad versus two to three years in China.

Without a doubt, there are many challenges for studying abroad. It is very different in culture and language between China and other countries. It will be more expensive to study abroad than in China. I have to leave my parents and county to fly to a distant country. However, I consider studying abroad as good investment for my future.
